

Children are vulnerable
Not letting children make decisions about their own lives is unfair
Children choose to go to school to make their lives better
Children need adults to provide for them
Children need adults to protect them
If a child has to make decisions and be responsible then they will
Adults should listen to the important things that children have to say
Children often work to provide food for themselves and their families
Children are innocent
Children are easily manipulated
Children can be strong and resourceful
Children should spend their time at school or playing
Childhood is not the same in poor countries and rich countries
The way that adults treat children affects the way that they behave
Children cannot make sensible choices for themselves
Children need adults to teach them what is right and wrong
Children can't have political opinions
Children are physically weak
18 is just a number
Children can have opinions about the world they live in
Childhood is a biological stage of life, ending at age eighteen
Children will make wrong decisions if left on their own
Having responsibilities is good for children's development
Children often play important roles in their families

Children are vulnerable
Not letting children make decisions about their own lives is unfair
Children choose to go to school to make their lives better
Children need adults to provide for them
Children need adults to protect them
If a child has to make decisions and be responsible then they will
Adults should listen to the important things that children have to say
Children often work to provide food for themselves and their families
Children are innocent
Children are easily manipulated
Children can be strong and resourceful
Children should spend their time at school or playing
Childhood is not the same in poor countries and rich countries
The way that adults treat children affects the way that they behave
Children cannot make sensible choices for themselves
Children need adults to teach them what is right and wrong
Children can't have political opinions
Children are physically weak
18 is just a number
Children can have opinions about the world they live in
Childhood is a biological stage of life, ending at age eighteen
Children will make wrong decisions if left on their own
Having responsibilities is good for children's development
Children often play important roles in their families